Embracing Equity and Compassion for a Healthier Oceanside

- Certain targeted populations persons/groups experience:
 - Higher rates of disease/injury
 - Higher burden of illness
 - Unequal access to services and resources
 - Require more intense health care services and resources
 - Poorer outcomes from treatment
- Thus, the burden on the health care system is not equal.

Island Health Compassion Handbook

- “Compassion is powerful. Compassion is the feeling that, when confronted with another’s suffering, we are motivated to relieve that suffering. Compassion involves putting a face on human suffering and acknowledging the powerful impact of feeling supported during distress.”
- “Compassion breaks down the walls built by stigma by recognizing and accepting the experience of fellow human beings. Compassionate response to substance use opens doors by encouraging acceptance and safety.”

BC Provincial Health Officer Special Report Stopping the Harm – September 2019

- “Stigma is a set of negative attitudes and/or opinions, such as discrimination or prejudice, about a person or group of people due to a certain behaviour (e.g., substance use) and/or life circumstance (e.g., homelessness)”
- Structural stigma “is stigma at a system level that is perpetuated by service providers and programs that are intentionally or inadvertently designed to inhibit access for people who use substances.”

Stigma Matters...

(PHO report)

“... because it undermines the response to the overdose crisis in BC at every turn. It negatively impacts the lives of people and the ability of some individuals to receive or access basic health (e.g., harm reduction, treatment) and social needs (e.g., housing, employment). Stigma influences public support for evidence-based strategies that save lives and link people to treatment, such as supervised consumption services. Additionally, system-level stigma compromises the quality of care received by an individual if they do access treatment. “

What patients & families say about Trillium Hospice

"I wish we had known what Hospice really was like, before we came. We were afraid to come. But it's wonderful! I wish we hadn't waited so long."

"The support and care were so helpful, just when we needed it most. I could relax and be his wife again, knowing that all his medical needs were taken care of. It allowed us to connect and focus on each other."

"With all the work of caregiving being done by the staff, we had the energy to focus on an upcoming family wedding. I really think my dad lived longer, because of Hospice! He wanted to make it to the wedding, and he did. The staff worked hard to help him meet his goal."

Hospice creates a space where you can attend to the more personal aspects of palliative and end-of-life care.

Treatment Pathways Oceanside

Working Together to Respond to the Opiate Overdose Public Health Emergency

Sherry Thompson
Treatment Pathways Oceanside Committee
Island Health Board Presentation
Jan 30, 2020

2020 is Year 4 of the Opiate Overdose Public Health Emergency – How are we doing in Oceanside?

With the number of illicit drug overdoses and tragic deaths in this area from drugs tainted with fentanyl, it is critical that both Island Health and communities work together to:

- save lives,
- strengthen partnerships, and
- connect people to treatment and recovery.

There are areas of excellence, but some services are not yet responding adequately to the needs of the community.

Treatment Pathways Oceanside Goals:

- ❖ To speed up access to treatment for those requesting help in dealing with substance use disorders;
- ❖ To improve coordination and collaboration among those providing services in Oceanside in order to improve outcomes for persons requesting help in dealing with addictions;
- ❖ To develop a system where clients feel welcomed and accepted at each point where they contact services;
- ❖ To improve the recognition and support for peer coaches, including achieving accreditation of the peer coach role.

Strengthening the Role of Peer Coaches in Responding to the Opiate Overdose Crisis

- ❖ Peers often function as informal system navigators
- ❖ People with substance abuse problems and their families often experience fear and shame
- ❖ Care providers, volunteers, and community members often feel uneasy dealing with people who use drugs
- ❖ Peers can help to bridge the gaps
- ❖ Our group, and our community, are upskilling our peers

Improving Access to Treatment and Coordination:

- More Access to Opiate Agonist Treatment – we have one excellent family physician with Addiction Medicine expertise – one day a week
- Improve Transitions
- Strengthen Early Intervention and Provide Support along the Path to Recovery
- Reduce Stigma and Discrimination
- Encourage Further Integration of Peer Coaches

To develop a system where clients feel welcomed and accepted at each point where they contact services

- ❖ Even with the best of intentions, and in the face of clear policy guidelines, stigma and discrimination still occur far too often
- ❖ Stigma can kill
- ❖ We need a health system where “no door is a wrong door”
- ❖ We believe that further integrating peers into health services will help break down fears and build empathy

How is the Community working to Address these Concerns?

❖ The Oceanside Community Action Team

Created in November 2019 from the Harm Reduction Working Group to:

- save lives,
- strengthen local partnerships, and
- connect people who use drugs to treatment and recovery.

❖ BOOST – Best Practices in Oral Opioid Agonist Therapy Provincial Collaborative

Quality Improvement project to increase retention on OAT and to promote steps toward recovery

❖ Peer Distribution Committee

Develop policy and procedures to ensure adequate resources in Overdose Emergencies

❖ Pray and Stay Sanctuary at St Anne's Church and OHEARTS Oceanside

Homelessness Ecumenical Advocacy Response Team Society Assisi Shelter – A consortium of 9 churches and community partners providing shelter and partnerships to assist people experiencing homelessness

However, even with all this bottom-up effort and good will – we still need leadership and support to make more significant progress

Next Steps We Would Like to See Happen:

- A formal change management project with a goal to incorporate substance use treatment as a core function of Oceanside Health Centre
- Ensuring Oceanside LHA receives an equitable share of funding to respond to the Opiate Overdose Crisis
- Ensuring rapid access to treatment through Oceanside Health Center for persons with substance use disorder
- Building referral pathways for those with serious mental health disorders concurrent with substance dependence
- Staff training in Human Rights, stigma reduction, building working partnerships with peer support workers, promoting smooth transitions with local and out of region services

In Closing

- Thank you for the opportunity to meet with you today
- In the words of one of our peers – what we want most is to stop losing our people to overdoses
- We look forward to working with you to help make this wish come true

We can be contacted through the address below and, in addition, many of our members and partners are in the audience today and can help clarify these issues.

Thank you.
